STRATEGIES TO COPE WITH "COVIDEMIC" FOR STUDENTS

It has been 100 days since World Health Organisation declared COVID-19 outbreak a global pandemic since then we have been under self quarantine causing stress and anxiety to ourselves. Here are few pointers that could help you overcome the negative thoughts about these uncertain times.

FIND A NEW AIM

Finding a new aim simply means to try and strategize a plan to do something that you always wanted to do but never got a chance or time to do, like..... painting a scenery or dancing your favourite song with the right steps or losing some extra pounds with right diet plan would tone you down. An Aim always gives purpose to lead a meaningful life. Do it this time and fulfil your new AIM

CONNECT & RE-CONNECT

Even though you live with your parents and siblings how many of you really know them or have made an effort to understand them? Don't just answer with a Yes or No or who cares... instead work on your skills to connect with them by simple actions of smiling at them and for a change being obedient to their needs willingly.

You will see the Re-connection happening.

TIDY UP YOUR OWN SPACE

Are you sure you must be hearing it always from your parents "clean up your room...it will make you feel better" they are right..!!! Though they don't know the science behind it...let me tell you what research says "Cleaning your personal space can actually reduce the impact of stress to 20 percent. A clean space makes your brain absorb and retain more information making you smarter. So before you sit to study next time....CLEAN UP".

EXERCISE

There is no better way to say exercise than actually doing it. Physical fitness is directly linked to mental wellbeing as it increases endorphins which are known to help in developing positive feelings. There are different forms of exercise that you can choose from ....Walking.,Yoga...,Aerobics...,Dancing..Zumba... find your pick and start from today.....
